Outliers Card

While analyzing the data, you notice a few observations with abnormally high values (for a variable in the dataset of your choice) compared to the rest of the individuals in your dataset. Unfortunately, these data may be skewing your analysis.

What do you do?

NB: An outlier is an observation with some values that are abnormal (compared to the majority of the data). This may be due to an error in data collection, or to truly atypical behavior.